

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Rosen Technology Resources, Inc. Announces that the Executive Office for US Attorneys has purchased the ALCoder™ Enterprise License.

Chicago, IL – October 1, 2007 — Rosen Technology Resources, an award-winning litigation support consulting and software company, is pleased to announce that the Executive Office for US Attorneys has purchased the ALCoder Enterprise License. The Executive Office for US Attorneys supports over 200 offices, and the purchase of ALCoder will allow those offices to auto-code an unlimited number of documents with no per-page or per-document costs. Those offices will also be able to use the software at each of their offices without the need to send the documents to any outside service bureaus.

ALCoder™ was developed to allow users the ability to auto-code their sensitive case documents in their own offices. Not only is ALCoder™ a cost-effective way to code, the one-click auto-code feature is easy-to-use and lowers the need for manual coding. The integration with the recently acquired LexisNexis products LAW and Concordance, along with CT Summation and other commonly utilized litigation support applications, provides legal professionals the edge by easily capturing and importing documents into the litigation support software of their choice.

Lisa Rosen, President of Rosen Technology Resources, said "We're happy to provide the federal government with this tool that will save both an incredible amount of time and a great deal of money. This gives them the edge so that they can spend their time chasing the bad guys. Accuracy, speed, ease of use and cost are always key considerations, and we're happy to support the US Attorneys."

For additional information about ALCoder™, call Rosen Technology Resources, Inc. at 312-251-4440 or email sales@rosentech.net to request an online demonstration.

About Rosen Technology Resources

Rosen Technology Resources, Inc. provides litigation support services, consulting and training from the beginning of a case through trial. Its founder, Lisa Rosen, has been working in the litigation support industry for several years and is certified to train on the nation's most widely utilized litigation support applications. For the past two years, RTR received the Law Technology News Award for Litigation Support Service/Consultant of the Year. In 2004, Lisa was awarded Dataflight's Presidential Circle Award for Outstanding Client Support and Product Development for the software applications Concordance and Opticon. Rosen Technology Resources provides consulting and training at several of AmLaw's top 100 firms throughout the country, as well as in-house legal groups for many Fortune 500 Companies. RTR is the exclusive resource for ALCoder and provides all training, sales and support. For more information, call (312) 251-4440 or email sales@rosentech.net.

For More information, please contact:

Lisa Rosen
Rosen Technology Resources
29 S. La Salle Street, Suite 500
Chicago, IL 60603
(312) 251-4440
sales@rosentech.net